The City of St. Charles is Looking for Volunteers to Test a Draft Version of its New Website

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (Aug. 26, 2024) – The City of St. Charles is looking for volunteers to test a draft version of its new website before its upcoming launch. As the website enters its final development phase, we are looking for up to 30 volunteers to go to the City’s draft site and use it as they normally would our current website. Search for information, pay a bill, click the links. Basically, take the draft site for a test drive and kick the tires. Residents, businesses, and visitors are all welcome to participate.

If you are interested, send an email to plancor@stcharlesil.gov and indicate if you are a resident, business owner, and/or visitor. The first 30 volunteers to respond will receive a link to the draft site and instructions for sending feedback.

The City began the process of redesigning its website last year. As part of the development process, we gathered feedback from the community through special Zoom webinars and at public meetings. This latest outreach effort will help us finalize the new site as we prepare to launch, which is anticipated within the next few months.
